

CHARLOTTETOWN HOME PRICES REMAIN FLAT IN THE FOURTH QUARTER OF 2014

Affordable housing maintains a stable market

CHARLOTTETOWN, January 14, 2015 – The Royal LePage House Price Survey and Market Survey Forecast released today showed stable prices year-over-year across all housing types surveyed in Charlottetown.

The average price of detached bungalows saw a minor 0.6 per cent increase year-over-year to $174,000, while standard two-storey homes and standard condominiums were unchanged, remaining at $205,000 and $128,000, respectively.

“The market has been fairly balanced this quarter, with little price appreciation but slightly more listings and homes changing hands than in the same period last year,” explained Ken Peters, broker and owner of Royal LePage Peters and Lank Realty. “We experienced a number of residents moving both in and out of the city over the past year, which has helped support a healthy local real estate market.”

Going into 2015, Peters anticipates that prices will be flat but predicts a small bump in unit sales. “We do not see any major events that would impact the market in the year ahead. Upcoming provincial and federal elections, lower oil prices and potential interest rate rises may have minor effects, but overall we expect real estate prices to remain stable.”

Nationally, average home prices showed modest to healthy year-over-year gains in most markets in the fourth quarter of 2014.

During the quarter, the average price of a home in Canada increased between 4.5 per cent and 6.7 per cent year-over-year. The average price of detached bungalows rose 6.7 per cent to $406,218, while standard two-storey homes increased 6.0 per cent to $443,379, and standard condominiums saw a 4.5 per cent increase to $257,624. Against the backdrop of a decidedly mixed macroeconomic environment at home and abroad, Royal LePage expects home prices to increase moderately in 2015, forecasting a 2.9 per cent national increase for the year ahead.

“In the fourth quarter of 2014, real estate markets unfolded as we anticipated, with modest year-over-year price changes in most regions contrasted against continued steep price increases in Western Canada and Greater Toronto,” said Phil Soper, president and chief executive of Royal LePage. “This follows a similar trend observed in the third quarter of 2014, when we predicted the beginning of a cyclical slowing in home price appreciation, to a pace that better reflects broad economic factors.”

“For our 2015 forecast, we could not ignore the potential impact of the steep decline in the price of oil on housing markets across Canada,” continued Soper. “In the immediate term we anticipate that the natural slowing of home price appreciation we called for in the third quarter of 2014 will be delayed in Central Canada and accelerated in the West by recent developments in the energy sector. Meanwhile in Atlantic Canada, buyers should continue to have the upper hand, with home prices across the region forecast to rise below general inflation.”

About the Royal LePage House Price Survey

The Royal LePage House Price Survey is the largest, most comprehensive study of its kind in Canada, with information on seven types of housing in over 250 neighbourhoods from coast to coast. This release references an abbreviated version of the survey which highlights house price trends for the three most common types of housing in Canada in 90 communities across the country. A complete database of past and present surveys is available on the Royal LePage website at www.royallepage.ca. Current figures will be updated following the complete tabulation of the data for the fourth quarter of 2014. A printable version of the fourth quarter 2014 survey will be available online on February 9, 2015. Housing values in the Royal LePage House Price Survey are Royal LePage opinions of fair market value in each location, based on local data and market knowledge provided by Royal LePage residential real estate experts.
