

HAMILTON HOUSING MARKET SEES SIGNIFICANT PRICE INCREASES IN SECOND QUARTER

Lower inventory levels lead to notable price appreciation across Hamilton

HAMILTON, July 14, 2015 – The Royal LePage House Price Survey and Market Survey Forecast released today showed significant price increases across each housing type surveyed in Hamilton.

Standard two-storey homes saw the biggest increase, rising 13.0 per cent year-over-year to an average price of $351,183. Detached bungalows also experienced a significant increase, rising 10.9 per cent to an average price of $266,580.

“Prices in Hamilton are continuing their steady march upward and we appear to be headed for a record year,” said Doug Tunis, broker and manager, Royal LePage State Realty Brokerage. “The affordability and close proximity of Hamilton to Toronto make it a desirable destination for would-be home buyers. With fewer listings available than we have seen in recent quarters, the market is tilting in favour of the seller.”

Looking ahead, Tunis believes that all indicators point to this strong market continuing. “Overall, Hamilton is in an enviable position. A strong local job market, vibrant community and relatively affordable home prices point to Hamilton remaining a coveted and in-demand destination for homebuyers,” Tunis added.

Nationally, against the backdrop of mixed economic signals at home and abroad, Canada’s real estate market remained healthy in the second quarter of 2015, with solid national average price appreciation across housing segments. Furthermore, the combination of high sales volumes and vigorous price appreciation in Canada’s largest cities has put the national residential real estate market on track for a record year in terms of total sales. With most Canadian real estate markets across the country advancing modestly, and some rapidly, Royal LePage advises that a further interest rate cut by the Bank of Canada could over-stimulate markets such as greater Toronto and Vancouver.

During the second quarter, the average price of a home in Canada rose between 3.9 per cent and 7.5 per cent year-over-year in the second quarter. The detached bungalow segment had the highest national increase, rising 7.5 per cent year-over-year to $438,938, while standard two-storey homes appreciated 6.8 per cent to $471,002. During the same period, the average price of a condominium rose 3.9 per cent to $268,583. Looking ahead, Royal LePage forecasts that the average price of a home in Canada will increase 6.1 per cent for the full year when compared to 2014.

“The robust national average home price increases that we have seen in the second quarter are heavily influenced by activity levels in Toronto and Vancouver,” said Phil Soper, president and chief executive officer, Royal LePage. “Looking to Canada as a whole, 2015 is shaping up to be a record year for housing, despite the cloud of economic uncertainty caused by low oil prices and twitchy global economies.”

About the Royal LePage House Price Survey

The Royal LePage House Price Survey is the largest, most comprehensive study of its kind in Canada, with information on seven types of housing in over 250 neighbourhoods from coast to coast. This release references an abbreviated version of the survey which highlights house price trends for the three most common types of housing in Canada in 90 communities across the country. A complete database of past and present surveys is available on the Royal LePage website at www.royallepage.ca. Current figures will be updated following the complete tabulation of the data for the second quarter of 2015. A printable version of the second quarter 2015 survey will be available online on August 14, 2015. Housing values in the Royal LePage House Price Survey are Royal LePage opinions of fair market value in each location, based on local data and market knowledge provided by Royal LePage residential real estate experts.
