

Relatively Flat Prices Expected in Moncton's Housing Market In 2016

High housing inventory levels put downward pressure on prices in region

MONCTON, January 13, 2016 – The aggregate<sup>1</sup> price of a home in Moncton declined 1.1 per cent year-over-year to $202,080 in the fourth quarter of 2015, according to the Royal LePage House Price Survey<sup>2</sup> and Market Survey Forecast<sup>3</sup> released today.

Broken out by housing type, the median price of a two-storey home decreased 2.6 per cent year-over-year to $210,044. Bungalow prices remained unchanged year-over-year, sitting at $193,479.

“Higher inventory levels due primarily to new construction, coupled with reduced demand, has led to some price softness in Moncton’s housing market,” said Carla Bouchard, recruiter and trainer, Royal LePage Atlantic. “Overall, we are currently in a buyer’s market situation, allowing leeway for purchasers to assess numerous options.”

Looking ahead, Bouchard predicts home prices will remain relatively flat in 2016, with no material changes expected in the local economy.

Nationally, Canada’s residential real estate market showed strong growth in the fourth quarter of 2015, led by hot Vancouver and Toronto markets. Looking forward to 2016, Royal LePage expects continued price increases in most markets, but not at the pace that has been the recent norm. Instead, the national real estate market is expected to slow later this year, principally due to the effects of a dampened economy in Western Canada and eroding affordability in Toronto and Vancouver.

The price of a home in Canada increased 6.5 per cent year-over-year to $500,688 in the fourth quarter. The price of a two-storey home rose 7.7 per cent year-over-year to $610,134, and the price of a bungalow increased 5.4 per cent to $420,082. During the same period, the price of a condominium increased 3.1 per cent to $341,448. Looking ahead to 2016, Royal LePage forecasts that the median price of a home in Canada will increase at 4.1 per cent for the full year when compared to 2015.

“The frenetic pace of our country’s largest housing markets should moderate throughout the year ahead,” said Phil Soper, president and chief executive officer, Royal LePage. “While most of the country will continue to see house value appreciation in 2016, we expect that the pace of price increases in the Greater Vancouver and the Greater Toronto Areas – where real estate appreciation has significantly outpaced job and wage growth – will settle to a more sustainable, single-digit price increase trajectory.”

In 2016, Royal LePage expects the price of residential real estate in Canada to be more heavily influenced by macroeconomic factors than by housing-specific variables such as tighter regulation in the mortgage industry. The Bank of Canada is expected to keep its overnight rate steady through the all-important spring market, extending the prolonged period of exceptionally low borrowing rates. While the new Federal Minister of Finance kicked off his appointment with a hike to 10% in the minimum down payment required for the portion of mortgage insurance over $500,000, Royal LePage expects this change to have a marginal effect on the overall market.
