

Ottawa Home Prices See Strong Growth in the Second Quarter of 2017

A shortage of listings and a surge in demand put upward pressure on Ottawa home prices

OTTAWA, July 13, 2017 – The aggregate<sup>1</sup> price of a home in Ottawa saw a sizable increase in the second quarter of 2017, climbing 8.2 per cent year-over-year to $432,864, according to the Royal LePage House Price Survey<sup>2</sup> and Market Survey Forecast released today.

When broken out by housing type, the median price of a two-storey home in the region increased 10.4 per cent year-over-year to $460,277 in the second quarter. Over the same period, the median price of a condominium and bungalow rose by 3.9 per cent and 2.6 per cent year-over-year to $327,956 and $405,642, respectively.

“Inventory levels across Ottawa have radically changed of late, reaching three-year lows and dropping by more than 20 per cent when compared to the same time last year,,” said Hanna Browne, broker, Royal LePage Team Realty. “In recent months, we have seen a Toronto-like effect with many buyers and not enough listings to go around. This dynamic is putting a lot of pressure on the region’s home prices, in what is now decidedly a seller’s market.”

Looking ahead to the rest of 2017, Royal LePage forecasts that the median price of a home in Ottawa will continue to climb, rising up by 6.0 per cent year-over-year to $439,332, as demand continues to intensify market trends within the region.

Nationally, Canada’s residential real estate market posted strong home price gains in the second quarter of 2017, with the majority of metropolitan markets across Canada displaying expansionary trends. During the quarter, the Royal LePage National House Price Composite showed that the price of a home in Canada increased 13.8 per cent year-over-year to $609,144. When broken out by housing type, the price of a two-storey home rose 14.6 per cent year-over-year to $725,391, while the price of a bungalow increased by 10.7 per cent to $511,965. Over the same period, the price of a condominium climbed 13.4 per cent to $397,826.

“Following a period of unprecedented regional disparity in activity and price appreciation, we are now seeing a return to healthy growth in the majority of Canadian housing markets,” said Phil Soper, president and CEO, Royal LePage. “The white-hot markets are moderating to very warm; the depressed markets are beginning to grow again. Canadian housing is in great shape – a statement that I certainly did not make last quarter.”

“The rate of national house price appreciation that we experienced in the second quarter continues to be above what we would consider a normal range, driven primarily by very strong year-over-year price growth across much of Ontario,” continued Soper.
