

House Prices in Regina Decline Modestly in Second Quarter

Buyer's market remains as region continues to stabilize

REGINA, July 10, 2019 – The aggregate home price in Regina dipped in the second quarter of 2019, decreasing 3.5 per cent year-over-year to $321,122, according to the Royal LePage House Price Survey<sup>1</sup> released today.

The median price of a two-storey home decreased 4.2 per cent, year-over-year, to $388,981 and the median price of a bungalow decreased by 3.5 per cent year-over-year to $293,631. The median price of a condominium, on the other hand, had a modest increase in price, rising 1.0 per cent year-over-year to $227,542.

“Although stress tests and rate increases have resulted in some listings taking longer to sell, well-priced properties in good condition will go quickly,” said Mike Duggleby, managing partner, Royal LePage Regina Realty. Duggleby emphasized that although the Alberta and Saskatchewan commodity-based economies have suffered recently, new potash mines opening close to Regina will create construction activity.

Duggleby noted that although the issues regarding low commodity prices affecting Alberta are also being felt in Saskatchewan, last month the Dominion Bond Rating Service (DBRS) ranked the province’s overall credit rating as the second highest among all provinces. Immigration is also sustaining the market as the population of Regina continues to grow.

Looking ahead to the end of the year, Royal LePage is forecasting the region’s aggregate price to decrease 4.9 per cent from year-end 2018.

The Royal LePage National House Price Composite, compiled from proprietary property data in 63 of the nation’s largest real estate markets, showed that the price of a home in Canada increased 1.1 per cent year-over-year to $621,696 in the second quarter of 2019. When broken out by housing type, the median price of a two-storey home rose 1.0 per cent year-over-year to $727,165, while the median price of a bungalow dipped 0.4 per cent year-over-year to $516,048. Condominiums remained the fastest growing housing type on a national basis, with its median price rising 3.8 per cent year-over-year to $452,451.

“We now have evidence of a sustained market recovery in the nation’s largest market, and signs of a price floor in other regions hit hard by the eighteen month-old housing correction,” said Phil

Soper, president and CEO, Royal LePage. “Only in the West do we see a significant number of home buyers remaining on the sidelines, depressing sales volumes and causing prices to sag. Buoyed by supportive economic conditions, many stubborn homeowners in B.C. and Alberta remain unwilling to let their precious real estate go for less than what they perceive as fair value, which has gone a long way to protecting existing home values.”

Royal LePage expects national home prices to see a modest uptick by the end of the year, rising 0.4 per cent compared to the end of 2018.
