

Saskatoon House Prices Decline in Second Quarter

Demand increases likely to create a more balanced market

SASKATOON, July 10, 2019 -- The aggregate price of a home in Saskatoon continued to show declines in the second quarter of 2019, decreasing 2.6 per cent year-over-year to $359,895, according to the Royal LePage House Price Survey<sup>1</sup> released today.

During the second quarter, the median price of a two-storey home decreased 3.0 per cent year-over-year to $388,470. At the same time, the median price of a bungalow decreased 2.2 per cent year-over-year to $327,325.

“What happened behind the scenes this spring is that we saw demand was up nine per cent year-to-date compared to last year and that’s a really strong growth number,” said Matt Miller, broker and owner, Royal LePage Saskatoon Real Estate. “We are moving from a buyer’s market into a more balanced one.”

Miller predicts prices to remain relatively flat in the next quarter, with perhaps some small increases. Home buyers should continue to benefit from low interest rates and the adjustment in regional sale prices. He stated the effects of the OFSI mortgage stress test are still being felt.

“If you look at the Saskatoon real estate market, the contraction mirrors what is happening in the economy and it is similar to other commodity-dependent regions,” stated Miller.

The Royal LePage National House Price Composite, compiled from proprietary property data in 63 of the nation’s largest real estate markets, showed that the price of a home in Canada increased 1.1 per cent year-over-year to $621,696 in the second quarter of 2019. When broken out by housing type, the median price of a two-storey home rose 1.0 per cent year-over-year to $727,165, while the median price of a bungalow dipped 0.4 per cent year-over-year to $516,048. Condominiums remained the fastest growing housing type on a national basis, with its median price rising 3.8 per cent year-over-year to $452,451.

“We now have evidence of a sustained market recovery in the nation’s largest market, and signs of a price floor in other regions hit hard by the eighteen month-old housing correction,” said Phil Soper, president and CEO, Royal LePage. “Only in the West do we see a significant number of home buyers remaining on the sidelines, depressing sales volumes and causing prices to sag. Buoyed by supportive economic conditions, many stubborn homeowners in B.C. and Alberta remain unwilling to let their precious real estate go for less than what they perceive as fair value, which has gone a long way to protecting existing home values.”

Royal LePage expects national home prices to see a modest uptick by the end of the year, rising 0.4 per cent compared to the end of 2018.
