

Growing demand from out-of-province buyers putting pressure on low supply in Edmonton's housing market

Buyers priced out of neighbouring Calgary market looking to transact in more affordable Edmonton market

EDMONTON, October 12, 2023 – According to the Royal LePage House Price Survey released today, the aggregate¹ price of a home in Edmonton decreased 2.8 per cent year over year to $433,100 in the third quarter of 2023. On a quarterly basis, the aggregate price of a home in the region decreased modestly by 0.3 per cent.

Broken out by housing type, the median price of a single-family detached home decreased 2.3 per cent year over year to $471,900 in the third quarter of 2023, while the median price of a condominium decreased 5.5 per cent to $194,900 during the same period.

"Edmonton's real estate market is building momentum at a time when many other markets across the country are losing some steam. We are seeing pressure build as the city becomes an increasingly attractive option for out-of-province and out-of-country buyers, some of whom have been priced out of the now less affordable Calgary market," said Tom Shearer, broker and owner, Royal LePage Noralta Real Estate. "Our inventory has shrunk to levels not seen in a long time, and I expect supply will continue to be outsripped by growing demand well into next year."

Shearer added that the resale market has been a benefactor of the lower capacity of the new construction industry. Single-family homes, while still within financial reach for most people, are becoming more expensive as a result of low supply. Some buyer hopefuls are being held back in the rental market.

"The recent GST exemption passed by the federal government for new qualifying rental housing will have a material impact on development in Edmonton. This will create some necessary additional rental inventory," said Shearer. "Given the level of demand we are currently experiencing and the shortage of supply, the stage is set for another competitive market in 2024."

¹ Aggregate prices are calculated using a weighted average of the median values of all housing types collected. Data is provided by RPS Real Property Solutions and includes both resale and new build.

Royal LePage is forecasting that the aggregate price of a home in Edmonton will increase 3.0 per cent in the fourth quarter of 2023, compared to the same quarter last year. The previous forecast has been revised modestly downward to reflect softer activity than expected in the third quarter.

Nationally, the aggregate price of a home in Canada increased 3.6 per cent year over year to $802,900 in the third quarter of 2023. On a quarter-over-quarter basis, however, the national aggregate home price decreased modestly by 0.8 per cent, indicating that while many Canadians have adjusted to the increased cost of borrowing, elevated interest rates continue to impact activity in markets across the country. In September, the Bank of Canada held its key lending rate steady at 5.0 per cent, following two consecutive rate hikes in the summer.²

"With activity slowing, home prices softened in some of our major markets over the last three months, following a stronger-than-expected second quarter. Prices remain up on a year-over-year basis, with today's stable market standing in sharp contrast to the steep declines experienced in the third quarter of 2022," said Phil Soper, president and CEO of Royal LePage. "While trading volumes in most regions remain sluggish, Canada's housing market is on solid footing, with pent-up demand building. We don't anticipate a material change in property prices through the remainder of the year.

"Slower activity has allowed critically low inventory levels to build marginally in many regions, yet the quantity of homes available for sale in this country remains well below the level needed to keep a lid on property price increases," Soper continued. "Once interest rates begin to ease, even by only a small amount, we expect buyers will return to the market in large numbers and the relentless upward march of home prices will begin again. At its root, housing supply remains out of step with the growing need for it."

The Royal LePage National House Price Composite is compiled from proprietary property data nationally and regionally in 63 of the nation's largest real estate markets. When broken out by housing type, the national median price of a single-family detached home increased 3.4 per cent year over year to $833,600, while the median price of a condominium increased 3.8 per cent year over year to $587,400. On a quarter-over-quarter basis, the median price of a single-family detached home decreased 1.0 per cent, while the median price of a condominium remained flat, increasing just 0.1 per cent. Price data, which includes both resale and new build, is provided by Royal LePage's sister company RPS Real Property Solutions, a leading Canadian real estate valuation company.

Royal LePage is forecasting that the aggregate price of a home in Canada will increase 7.0 per cent in the fourth quarter of 2023, compared to the same quarter last year. The previous forecast has been revised downward to reflect softer activity than expected in the third quarter, which resulted in a modest decline in prices in some markets, including Toronto and Vancouver.

² Bank of Canada maintains policy rate, continues quantitative tightening, September 6, 2023

Royal LePage Home Price Data:

Royal LePage House Price Survey Chart: rlp.ca/house-prices-Q3-2023 Royal LePage Forecast Chart: rlp.ca/market-forecast-Q3-2023

Royal LePage Royalty-Free Media Assets:

Royal LePage's media room contains royalty-free assets, such as images and b-roll, that are free for media use.

- Media room: rlp.ca/mediaroom
- Royalty-free assets: rlp.ca/media-assets

About the Royal LePage House Price Survey

The Royal LePage House Price Survey provides information on the most common types of housing, nationally and in 63 of the nation's largest real estate markets. Housing values in the Royal LePage House Price Survey are based on the Royal LePage Canadian Real Estate Market Composite, produced quarterly through the use of company data in addition to data and analytics from its sister company, RPS Real Property Solutions, the trusted source for residential real estate intelligence and analytics in Canada. Additionally, commentary on housing market trends and data on price and forecast values are provided by Royal LePage residential real estate experts, based on their opinions and market knowledge.

About Royal LePage

Serving Canadians since 1913, Royal LePage is the country's leading provider of services to real estate brokerages, with a network of approximately 20,000 real estate professionals in over 670 locations nationwide. Royal LePage is the only Canadian real estate company to have its own charitable foundation, the Royal LePage Shelter Foundation, which has been dedicated to supporting women's shelters and domestic violence prevention programs for 25 years. Royal LePage is a Bridgemarq Real Estate Services Inc. company, a TSX-listed corporation trading under the symbol TSX:BRE. For more information, please visit www.royallepage.ca.

For further information, please contact:

Stephanie Matthias North Strategic on behalf of Royal LePage stephanie.matthias@northstrategic.com (416) 802-1612